PURPOSE OF THIS REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL

The purpose of the Request for Proposal (RFP) is to solicit sealed proposals to establish a contract through competitive negotiations for the procurement of Principal Institute Professional Development.

SCOPE OF SERVICES

Albuquerque Public Schools Summer Principal Institute (SPI)

Highly effective principals are critical to driving student achievement. School leaders are estimated to account for one-fourth of school-based effects on student achievement, making them second only to teachers. Recent research from the Wallace Foundation finds that effective principals shape a vision of academic success for all students, create a climate hospitable to education, cultivate leadership in others, improve classroom instruction, and manage people, data, and processes with the goal of school improvement.

The purpose of the Albuquerque Public Schools Summer Principal Institute – SPI – is to provide professional development and build the capacity of Albuquerque Public School Principals, Assistant Principals, District Leaders, and participants. The institute will build on knowledge regarding systems, structures, and pedagogy of the highly effective school culture. The institute is designed to provide leaders with opportunities to refine and expand upon their understanding of current best practices of culturally responsive school leaders, equity, and school culture from experts in the field of education.

The Albuquerque Public Schools (APS) has successfully maximized its annual fiscal resources by offering professional development for principals, assistant principals, district leaders, and aspiring principals. This objective is achieved by bringing national experts in leadership development, equity, and school culture to the district's principals. Bringing experts in the field to APS principals allows the district to increase opportunities for focused professional development as it strategically builds the organizational culture for the purpose of school improvement.

To develop a shared understanding of the importance that culturally responsive school leadership, equity, and school culture have on student learning and academic achievement, the Summer Principals' Institute and Conference – SPI will provide APS principals with the opportunity to participate in topics that focus on these concepts. Specific foci for the annual conference will reinforce yearly APS goals and priorities as a strategy for improving academic achievement for all students.

Statement of Need

The goal of the APS District is to continue to provide professional development for all its school leaders. To do so, it is critical that APS maximize financial resources and time in ways that have significant impacts on schools and students. The Summer Principals' Institute will provide two days of plenary and workshop sessions designed expressly around the district's annual goals and priorities. The focus addresses APS priorities related to improving learning outcomes for all students by increasing principal leadership knowledge and skills to improve the pedagogy of all teachers, including sustained support for underperforming teachers. Learning for the whole child will be increased to improve academic outcomes in the preparation for college and career readiness.

District leadership recognizes and supports the need for principals to engage in high-quality learning and reflective practice. SPI is a unique event designed for principals that allows them to collaborate, network, and reflect on best practices to develop plans for improving the school they lead.

Project Description

The Summer Principal Institute is held in June, when 250 principals, assistant principals, and district leaders will have the opportunity to attend the institute to learn about research and methodologies for school culture. APS aspires to have robust and positive school cultures that foster effort and productivity, improve collegial and collaborative activities, promote better communication and problem-solving, and create opportunities to engage in the development of a shared understanding of the district's goals and priorities to transform schools resulting in academic improvement for all students.

Organizational Information

At the direction of the Superintendent, professional learning for principals would be best served by providing an opportunity for participation in professional development for all APS principals and assistant principals. An ongoing focus for the district has been instructional leadership development. This project supports that focus and promotes the retention of highly qualified principals committed to helping students achieve academic success.

The Wallace Foundation 2021 research report, How Principals Affect Students and Schools: A Systematic Synthesis of Two Decades of Research, states, "The impact of an effective principal has likely been understated, with impacts being both greater and broader than previously believed: greater in the impact on student achievement and broader in affecting other important outcomes, including teacher satisfaction and retention (especially among high-performing teachers), student attendance, and reductions in exclusionary discipline."

The principal institute comes from the belief that principals are the instructional leaders of their schools. As such, if they are to maximize their impact on learning, they must receive support for professional growth that will empower them to be transformational change agents for improving school and student success. Leadership development and the impact of a principal's professional expertise must include knowledge of culturally responsive school leadership, effective teaching, equity, social justice, and policy reform to transformational and change theory. A core set of requisite skills is setting direction, developing people, and redesigning the school's culture. By engaging principals in the study of their school's culture, their hope for APS students can be realized by continuously reflecting on the beliefs, norms, attitudes, and behaviors that affect quality leadership, teaching, and learning. The principal can nurture and influence the collective will of teachers in their schools to engage them on a deeper level as they study and plan for meeting the needs of the whole child and student's long-term success. The Summer Principal Institute develops a group of principal leaders that will guide their teachers and schools toward a vision of high-quality learning for all students who will be college and career-ready. “Leadership is second only to classroom instruction among all school-related factors that contribute to what students learn at school” (Leith wood et al. 2004).

Project Objectives

With over a third of our school principals turning over every two years, APS is focused on professional development and investing in multiple ways to develop new principals to increase their own leadership capacity in the areas of school culture, equity, socio-emotional learning, and creating environments for teachers and students to thrive and achieve, and for experienced principals to continue to grow and refine their leadership skills.

1. Engage leaders in collaborative discourse, professional development, and the study of teaching and learning as it relates to district goals and priorities to improve learning practices and student academic outcomes.

Albuquerque Public Schools Goals

Mobilize all staff around a clear plan, grounded in a culture of high expectations and accountability, for how to achieve academic success for all students.

Priority 2: Rigorous Instruction

Support leaders and teachers to provide students with rigorous, culturally sustaining, grade-level instruction that leverages high-quality instructional materials and is continually responsive to students’ progress.

Cultivate safe schools and classrooms that keep all students engaged in their learning by ensuring they each have access to robust academic, social emotional learning, and extracurricular opportunities that meet their individual needs.

Priority 4: Responsive and Coordinated Systems

Establish clear district systems for managing resources and communicating and supporting schools and families in a way that authentically responds to students’ needs.

2. Increase equity focus through culturally responsive and sustaining pedagogy to create systems that support student subgroups represented by the Yazzie/Martinez lawsuit to address learning gaps.
3. Develop a collective understanding of the importance of school culture and its effects on principal and teacher efficacy, student learning, and academic achievement.

Project Timeline

June: Principals convene to engage in two days of professional development. Two hundred fifty Albuquerque Public School principals, assistant principals, and district leaders will attend plenary sessions and work in break-out sessions to learn about how to improve school culture, specifically to learn about equity and culturally sustaining and revitalizing pedagogies to increase academic outcomes for all students and better develop the whole child in preparation for college and career.

Scope of Work

1. Presenters are asked to prepare presentations delivered over two days in plenary and workshop settings.
2. Plenary and break-out session speakers are asked to prepare engaging and interactive presentations with supporting resources for the principal's future reference.
3. Presentation content includes strategies for authentically integrating the APS goals and priorities.
4. Presentations develop culturally responsive leaders who know and can ensure that students have school experiences that enable all students to have a positive pathway to adulthood, particularly those furthest from justice.
5. Presentations assist principals in creating and implementing school vision and mission that reflect a commitment to equity and aspirations of each student.
6. Presentations assist principals in creating safe, culturally inclusive environments that attend to the well-being of all community members, students, parents, community members, teachers, and staff.
7. Presentations will assist principals in developing systems for collaboration between members of the school and the broader community, especially those furthest from justice, to create a school culture reflective of a focus on community-based funds of knowledge.

The objective of this project is to establish sustainable systems for improving and refining school culture by envisioning a future — a clear picture of what we as an organization expect to look like about creating inclusive, culturally relevant, sustaining school environments from the present to the future in the Albuquerque Public Schools.

Principals will acquire information, systems, and strategies to develop plans that will be implemented during the school year to meet equity and culturally responsive school objectives.

- Presenters will provide assessment tools or strategies that will assist principals in evaluating implemented equity and culturally responsive school leader practices.

Implementing this project will lead to more rigorous levels of teaching and higher levels of learning for students at all levels. Improving the school's culture will help students experience more tremendous success and be better prepared for end-of-year summative exams. Long-term goals include principals who know why it is essential to improve school culture to decrease learning gaps and increase academic outcomes.
